“ Scott is a fine man. A man who valued work as he did, was headed in the right direction. I can imagine that growing up in his home for his children, would have been a similar experience to the one I had in my childhood home, namely that it wasn't going to be a fun experience if you were lazy. And I know his kids grew up knowing how to work.

I've spent a lot of enjoyable time listening to Scott's stories about growing up in Kelsey and his relating experiences about some of the first jobs he had as a young man.

Perhaps the biggest compliment I can pay Scott is to say that the 2 men I have respected most in my life, my dad Wilburn Tefeller and my father-in-law Russell Green, had great respect for Scott. I cannot pay him a better compliment.

“ I worked at Scott Greens Dairy for over two years and loved coming to work everyday even though I worked seven days a week milking his Holsteins. Scott Greens family till this day is one of the finest families I've ever known then and now along with the Blackstones are fine fine people and Scott will be in my memories till I die.

Sincerely,

“ Scott was not only a hard worker, he was a man of integrity, an honest man, and a very intelligent, self taught man.

He helped and advised Babs and me in 1971 when we were starting up our dairy farm. We are very appreciative for his help.

Flo, you did well when you married Scott. He needed you so much, you worked long and hard when you joined him.

God bless you and the kids in the days ahead.
