I truly thought we would have more time together Babe , my feelings are all over the place , I get mad at you for leaving me but then I realize I told you to go be with your loved ones but still I want you back , I will forever love you , what I wouldn't give for you to walk through that door . Oh God just one more day ??? I miss you so much that nothing feels right my heart feels empty as does this town nothing will ever be right again , I thought till death do us part would be forever not this soon , I have to make myself think that God had other plans for us but not having you beside me makes me not want to be here without you , it's to hard and everyone keeps telling me it will get easier but I just don't believe it will . Oh God I miss you and when we were outside and you said to me I won't be here to guide you ? Only you could've given me the guidance and strength I need now , you were my rock and no matter how Tuff things got at times we both knew we still had eachother , the love I have always had for you will never go away RIP my Love until we are together again .
