“ Anyone who thinks gentleness and kindness don’t go together with masculinity didn’t know Dwayne Lloyd. It’s been good to hear so many people remembering Dwayne by how nice he is! Of course, he was “all man,” spending so much of his time on the water and in the woods, fishing, hunting, and cutting down trees with a cigar in his mouth. He was a renaissance man, however, enjoying “the finer things,” whether it be good food or good scotch. One time my son caught a stingray on a trip down at the coast and Dwayne cleaned it and ate it because he heard they were good! I’m afraid our relationship was rather lopsided because of Dwayne’s generosity and willingness to help me even when it had been months since we’d seen each other. Thank you for everything, Dwayne. Lori, I pray all the great memories of Dwayne will comfort you as you grieve.

Love,
Shayne Skarda
