“ Charles and I got married and ran the grocery and gas station at Rosewood. Charles would take me to station at 6 and he would go to college. It would be dark but Jack and Marlin Robertson would come in the mornings before they went to work and get coffee. They would sit around until daylight. It seemed that they were just protecting me from being there by myself. Jack was always cracking jokes and having a good time. May God comfort his family. Love to you all

“ *We didn't know Mr. Settles very well, but after we bought some land in Rosewood from Ray, he would drive his tractor down the road to welcome us to the country. He would come by several more times just to say hi and see if we needed anything. RIP Mr. Settles and reap the fruits of your harvest.
