“ Daddy loved to travel and he taught us to respect other peoples' customs. I recently found out that at one time he took Russian so that he could communicate better with his co-workers. He was a hard worker and a jack of many trades. He was very witty when he wanted to be and he could be quite at other times. He loved his sports and was an excellent conversationalist. He taught me to never give up and to do things as they should be done. I hope you are enjoying exploring your new place of peace and beauty.
