“ I am so sorry for your loss. I have a lot of childhood memories with Joe. I remember Joe and Douglas playing and Annette aggravating them. I remember Mother making them box it out one day when they had a disagreement. We had some good times.

“ Johnny Ingram, wife Edith and children become acquainted with the Cox family while attending college in College Station. Joe & I spent many a day & night trying to fill our minds with the information to repeat in tests as we worked toward the goal of graduation.

Joe learned my likes and dislikes and I did the same with him. Joe once told me "you need to move to east Texas, you'll fit in fine". As fate would have it we did relocate to east Texas.

We have continued a close family relationship with the Joe & Glenda through the loss of family members and other personal happenings. These circumstances have better prepared us to handle this moment. Always remember "you are not alone".

Joe & Glenda have served as great role models and I personally am a stronger person from their friendship and association. Now, suffering from dementia, Edith does not understand, I'm sure she would agree "we are blessed to have had the friendship of the Joe & Glenda Cox family".
