“ Hard to believe it's almost been a year since you passed. You were "Curly" to my "Laurie" and we had such fun! You are missed, Kevin!

“ My heart is broken. I can't believe that I am just now finding out about your passing. I am so thankful that we were able to reconnect and share several long phone calls over the years. Heaven's choir just got a lot more beautiful. Rest well my friend.

“ Kevin and I met at the Summit Club. My husband (Dr. James Lowe) and I were members. After Kevin could no longer work, him and I shared a love for horror flicks, we would give each other recommendations all the time. You will be sorely missed my friend.

“ Oh Kevin, there's not enough space here for the memories....kick the can, swing the statue, bike riding in Ridgewood, exploring the drainage ditch through our neighborhood....later on in high school classes together, dances, Solid Rock, pep rallies and games, many long talks over the phone....you shared your amazing voice with us at my wedding...and our trip to New York just a few years ago. You shared your beloved city with us. Walking in the cold with only a T-shirt and a vest. I cherish our memories. You are precious to me. You will be deeply missed. My heart hurts, but yours is now whole. Thank you for your love and friendship. -Mickie

“ My dear Kevin, working together with you at Saks Fifth Avenue for 6 years loved to watch your appreciation and dedication to your guest at the restaurant. In many years (over 25) working as food service manager in NYC I never worked with someone who gave so much of himself to his guests each and every one, each and every day. We have only recently connected you in Texas me in Vermont over the phone and I got to know you better. I appreciated our conversations about our Saks stories, people and places in NYC and our mutual struggles in our lives that we shared with compassion, relation, and understanding, I found you a warm person who lived the cliché, "if you don't have something nice to say about someone, don't say anything at all. You gave a lot of love and warmth to this world and tonight it is at a loss without it, but I know your positive energy flows in this plane or on another. John Charles Nuss
