Max shopped at my wife's and my bookstore in Gladewater. I got to know him pretty well and I really enjoyed his company. He signed one of his football photographs for me. I have been meaning to have it blown up to hang on the wall here at the store and now that he's gone I will make sure to do that as soon as i can. I will miss his visits. We shared an interest in books and I loved listening to his stories about football in the forties and fifties. May he rest in peace.
