“ Where do I start. Memories to cherish forever is listening to his conversations with my son as he was growing up about future plans. Visiting him on Sundays, he looked forward to taking Madyson, Brendan (at times), and I on his 4 wheeler through his pasture to give his horses various treats. When I would visit my patients in memory care, I would spend time sitting with him a good while before leaving. He would light up every single time and tell anyone around him, "this is my girl". He would then ask me about Jason, Madyson, and Brendan. He would tell me he missed talking to his sister every single day. The bond they had was so so strong. It was the sweetest thing ever to witness. I honestly feel blessed they inherited me into this amazing family when I married Jason. I never knew how close and loved people could be in a family. I will miss his presence and I was blessed with the time I got to spend with him. I love each and every one of you! Susie, Joe, Ava my prayers are with you all as well as all the grandkids and great grandkids.
