“ She liked to say, "Five foot two, eyes of blue. That's me!" Then she admitted, "But I'm only five feet now."

I replied, "Years of gravity have lopped an inch and a half off my 5 feet three and a half."

"Humph, that makes you five two, eyes of blue now," she said.

I smiled and told her, "Well, you're five feet, can't be beat, eyes of blue, nobody like you, flaming hair, none can compare--has anybody seen my baby sis?"

We laughed together.

We enjoyed our banter and stories and bragging on children and grandkids and...she beat me to it...greatgrand. She made giggle tears roll down my cheeks every time she told me about her hospital antics and tales of mischief.

She shared joy and compassion, good food, fine art, memories, and hopes with the people she loved--and often with total strangers. Anybody around Ronda didn't stay a stranger for long. She held her family close enough that her arms could reach out and embrace those passing by along life's way.

She'll always have a special place in each heart blessed to know her.
